from you to me...

Hello there,
Isn't it great now that we can wear all our summer clothes, and not have to worry about tights and socks.
I've been sorting out my wardrobe so I won't have loads of clothes taking up space that I know I'm never going to wear again.
Let me know what you think of our regular tv pin-up
- who would you like to see? Write and let me know.
'Bye for now, your friend,

Barbie

I have a dog called Cass who's eleven years old and she's very greedy. My cat is called Ginger and she's very fussy about her food. She hates to be made a fuss of.
This is a picture of me with my pony Frisk. He loves to fight the other ponies.
Aimee Sowerby, Farnham.

RhymeTime

I always buy your magazine,
No matter if it's dirty or clean.
All the fashion's are the latest,
Skipper's story is the greatest.
And that's the animal adventure,
That story really does clench you.
But I love Barbie best of all,
For she's wonderful and tall.
Rachel Young, West Sussex.

Just Joking

How do you find where a flea has bitten you?
Start from scratch!

Why did the chicken cross the road twice?
Because he was a double crosser.

Who always has to sleep with his shoes on?
A horse.

What is an elephant after he is four days old?
Five days old.

Angela Griffiths, Staffs.

What animals need oiling?
Mice because they squeak.

What did the hat say to the scarf?
You hang around here while I go on ahead.
What did the lion say when he saw two hunters in a truck?
Meals on wheels!

Sophie Bowerman, Coventry.

Mother: Eat your cabbage, dear.
It puts colour into your cheeks.
Susy: I don't want green cheeks!

John: It's raining cats and dogs today.
Bobby: I know. I've just stepped into a poodle.

What stays hot in a refrigerator?
Mustard!

What's yellow and stupid?
Thick custard!

How did Noah see in the dark?
He turned on the floodlights!
Clare Wilson, London.

Woman: Can this wool coat be worn in the rain?

Assistant: Have you ever seen a sheep carrying an umbrella?

Louise McCay, Co. Antrim.

SUMMER

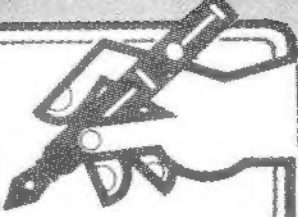

Summer is a lady
With golden locks of hair.
She hates the cold and snow and ice.
And tells them to beware.
She loves to see things shining
Especially the sun.
She gives it lots and lots of heat
To sun tan everyone.
Summer is warm and gentle
Wearing lovely clothes.
She loves small pretty dresses
In lots of sunset mauves.
She spends her time mending flowers
In case they bend their stems.
She sprinkles them with dew drops
To help their beauty blend.

Janet Smith, Kent.

Letters

Dear Barbie,

When my dad was a little boy, he was playing around and got a pan stuck on his head. No matter how hard Grandma tried she couldn't get the pan off, so she decided to take him to the hospital. They had to travel 2 miles on a bus, then walk to get to the hospital.

So that people wouldn't laugh, Grandma put a paper bag over the bucket and cut a slit so that my dad could breathe.

Can you imagine what the nurses thought when they saw him?

Kirsteen Parkin, Wakefield.

Dear Barbie,

My family had all gone out for a meal together. We'd just started to eat our food when I asked my little brother to pass the salt.

He passed me a little package which he thought was salt, but when I read the side of the packet it said sugar.

The silly boy had poured sugar all over his plate of fish and chips!

Barbie fan, Dublin.

Dear Barbie,

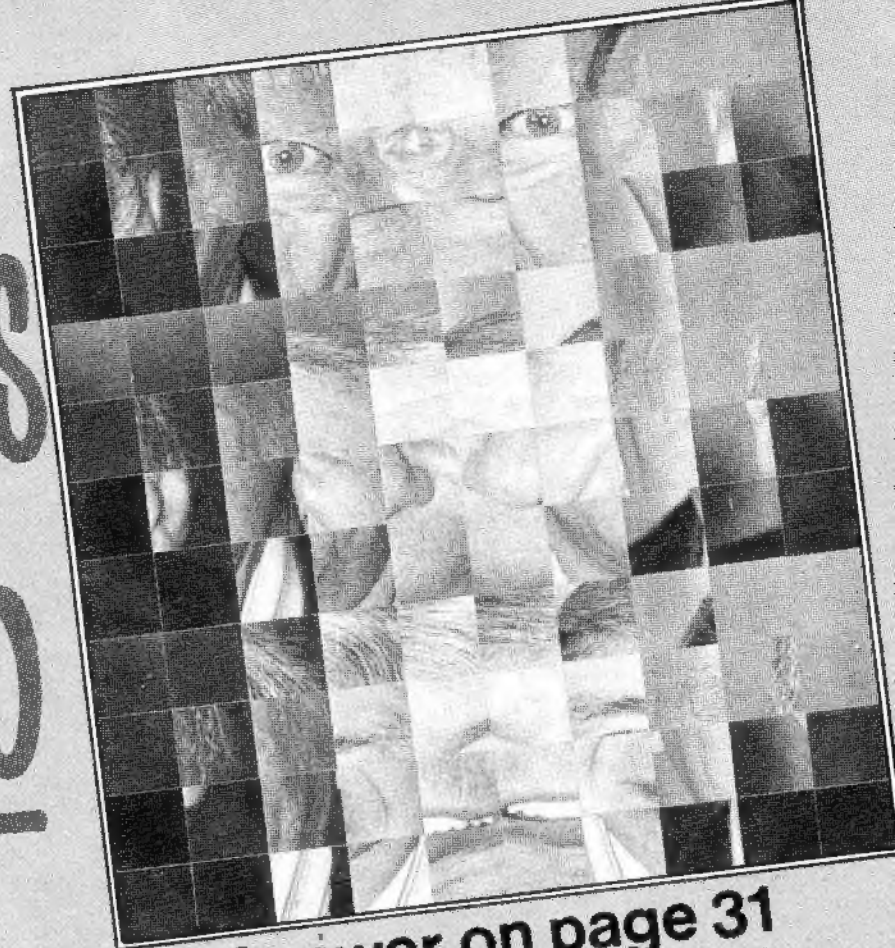

One day, Mum, Dad, my sister and I were out for a walk. It was very muddy and soon our boots were covered in mud. On our way back home, we came to what looked like a puddle, but it was actually quite deep.

Dad said, "Here we are girls. We'll wash our boots in here before we go home." And with an almighty splash! Dad waded in, lost his balance and got soaked! Luckily we didn't follow him.

Now, every time we go for a walk, we always say to Dad, 'Are we going to wash our boots in a puddle?'

Hayley Butcher, Milton Keynes.

Guess who

Answer on page 31

Dear Barbie,

A few weeks ago we were having our evening meal when my sister asked Mum if she could tell her something.

"Well," said Mum, "will it put me off my food?"

"Yes," said my sister, so Mum said it would have to wait until after she had finished her dinner.

When Mum had eaten every scrap off her plate, she asked my sister what was so urgent.

"Oh, it doesn't matter now," she piped up. "It's just that there was a dead slug in your lettuce."

Mum suddenly went very green!

Gail, Dublin.

The stars look down

part one

Barbie and her boyfriend Ken were leaving for the seaside to photograph a new summer swimsuit collection, when suddenly...

VIRGO
A TIME OF UNREST AND CHANGE WHICH MAY THREATEN YOUR FUTURE.
AVOID ALL CONTACT WITH DARK-HAIRED STRANGERS.

In stony silence they drove to the coast. . . then it was time to start work. . .

We'll take some poses first, Barbie! Move closer to that dune, will you?

Can't we go further along the beach? This place worries me!

Barbie, for heaven's sake, this horoscope nonsense has gone far enough! You're wasting my time!

And you're not showing me the slightest bit of consideration!

And a couple of hours later. . .

I want an action sequence now, Barbie! Run fast towards me along the edge of the surf, okay?

Yes. . .

Why?

There's. . . a dark-haired stranger over there! I want to keep well away from him!

But at last, the photo session got under way. . .

. . . How's this?

Perfect! Keep going!

continued overleaf

Those three surfboard riders coming in will make a perfect background!

Okay!

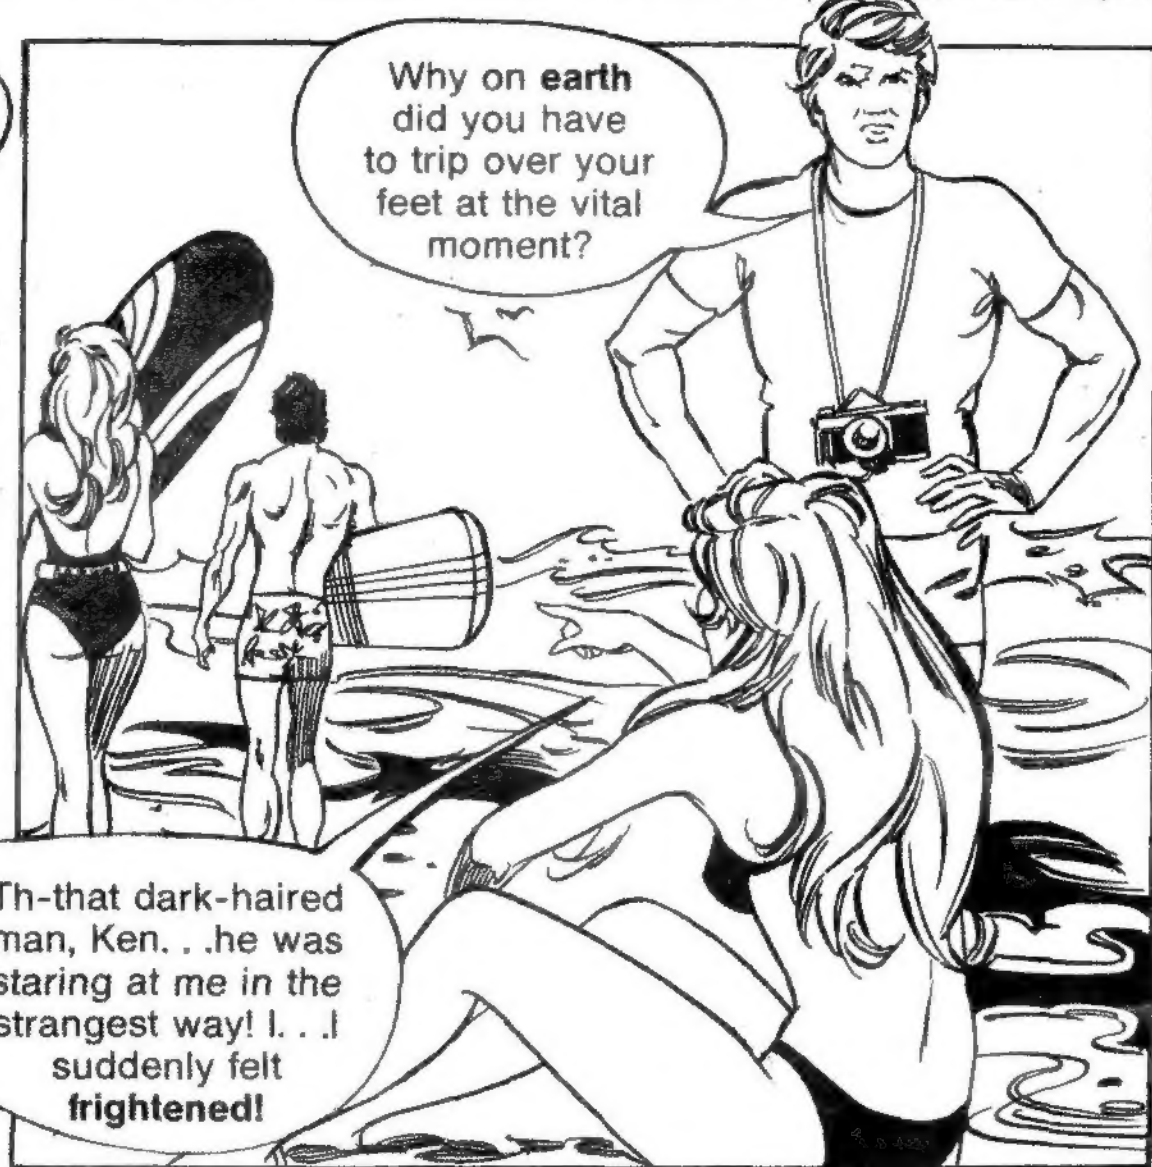

But as the surfers swept in on a wave. . .

Th-that one nearest to me, he's--- Oooh-aaaah!

Idiot! You've ruined a perfect shot!

Why on earth did you have to trip over your feet at the vital moment?

Th-that dark-haired man, Ken. . .he was staring at me in the strangest way! I. . .I suddenly felt frightened!

That does it! I'm sick to death of hearing excuses about sinister dark-haired strangers!

I'm going for a 'burger and coke!

Of all the insufferable---! Ken can do what he likes! I'll get some fun by hiring a wind-surfer!

Barbie was quite an expert wind-surfer. Minutes later. . .

Conditions are perfect! I'll cut right across the bay and sail round the headland!

But suddenly. . .

Barbie! Baaarrrbie!

That's Ken. . . I wonder what he's shouting about?

Something rude and nasty, I'll bet. . . well, this time I'm going to ignore him!

But as Barbie rounded the headland. . .

Oh, no. . . sea mist! A huge, rolling bank of it!

Within seconds, Barbie had lost all sense of direction. . .

Through Barbie's mind flashed the fateful words of her horoscope. . .

A TIME OF UNREST AND CHANGE WHICH MAY THREATEN YOUR FUTURE

Unrest and change is right! And. . . and if things go on like this, I won't even have a future!

K-Ken was trying to warn me, that's why he shouted! Now I've no idea where I am!

Is Barbie right to take her horoscope so seriously? Part 2 of this chilling serial in Barbie 15!

Barbie in Hollywood

Performing all her own dare-devil stunts made Mitzi famous. And this movie could make you a star too, Barbie!

Oh, how exciting!
I'll try not to let you down!

At a glamorous Hollywood party, Barbie learned her screen test had been successful, and she was to play the title role in the movie life story of Mitzi Lang, one of the great-old time filmstars. . .

Will Miss Lang be coming to the studio to watch the film being made?

No, she hasn't been seen nor heard of for donkey's years!

When her pictures went out of fashion, she couldn't get any more acting work. It broke her heart, they say, having to leave the studio.

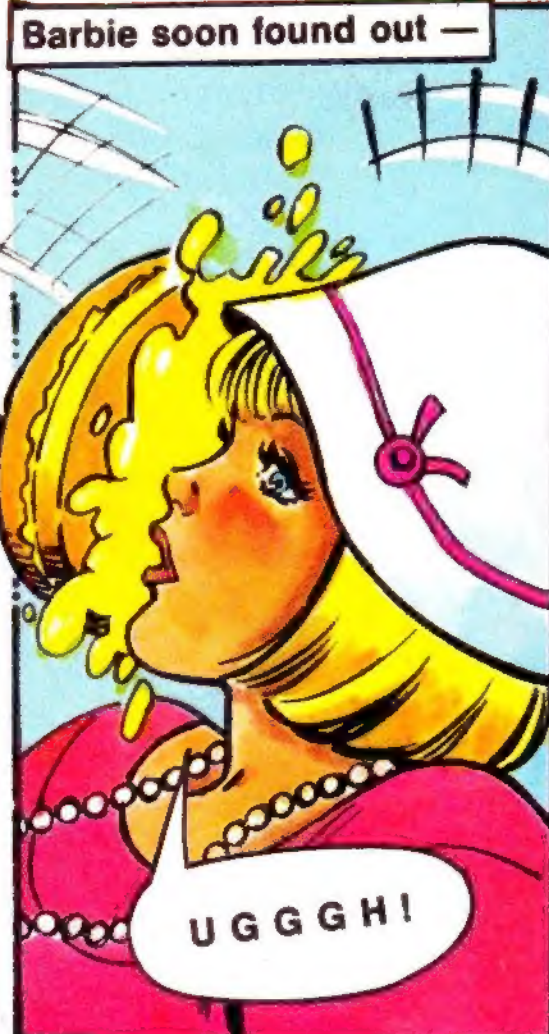

Oh, how sad.

Next morning. . .

Oh, gosh, I wonder if Mitzi had butterflies in the tummy, too, on her first day?

Barbie was whisked to the make-up and wardrobe departments and hurried onto the set. . .

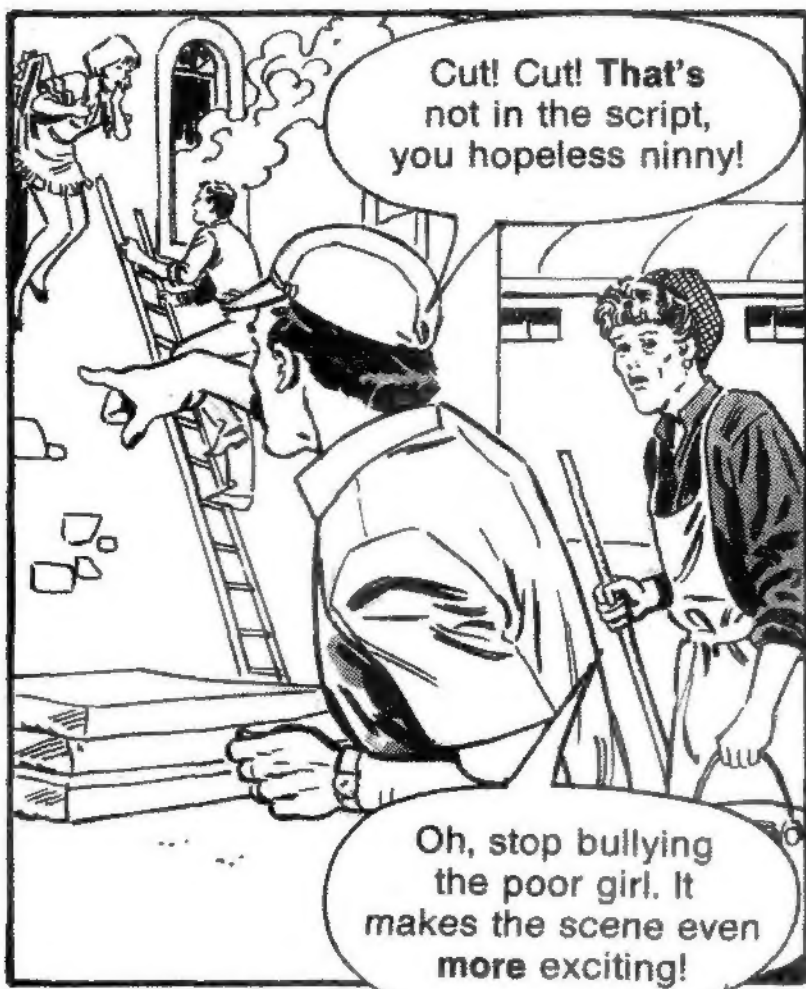

The Director was relentless. . .

. . .until finally. . .

continued overleaf

Cut! Cut! That's not in the script, you hopeless ninny!

Oh, stop bullying the poor girl. It makes the scene even more exciting!

Look, you stick to sweeping up the studio, Ma, and leave me to direct this epic — okay?

Why are you taking her side anyway?

Because she reminds me of... of Mitzi.

After that the two became almost inseparable...

How am I doing, Ma?

Fine — but stop grinning, you young monkey! You're supposed to be a fearsome Pirate Girl!

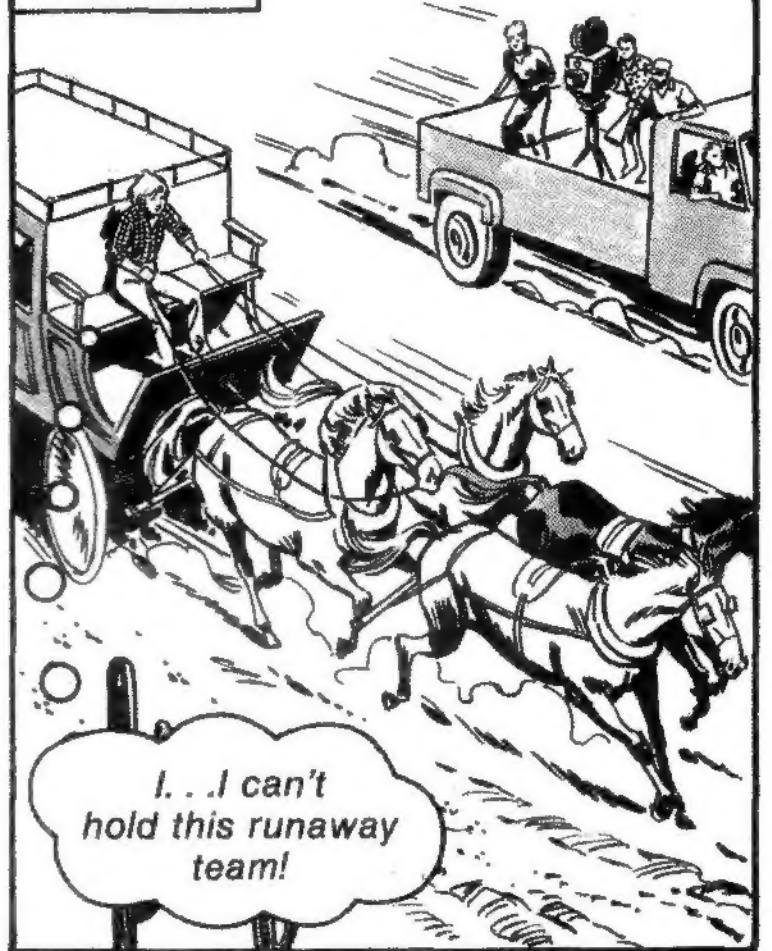

Then came the last day of shooting...

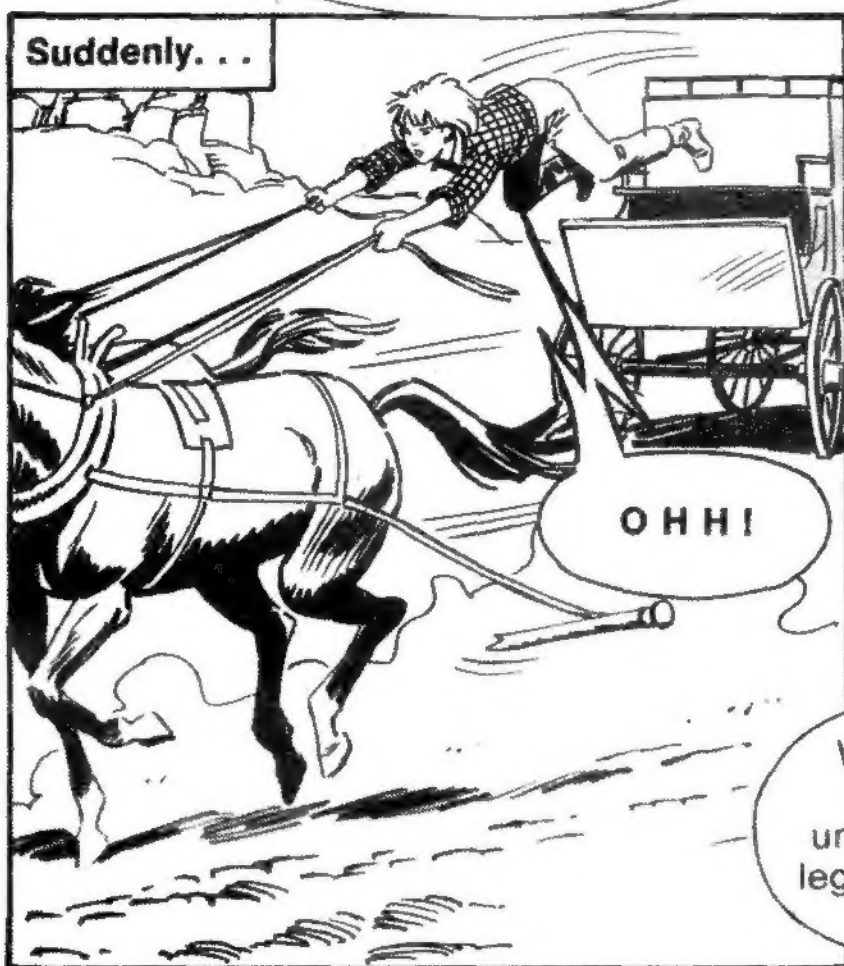

All set for your big final scene, lovey?

Mmm, I've just been to the stables to make friends with the horses.

And later...

I... I can't hold this runaway team!

Suddenly...

OH H!

Barbie tried desperately to cling on...

What are we going to do? If she falls under those galloping legs she'll get trampled to death!

Drive this truck as close as you can...

...somebody's got to stop the leader!

H-has that old girl gone crazy...?!

continued overleaf

Oh, sure! Old Ma the Cleaning Lady has seen 'em all come an' go!

But Mitzi wouldn't have let them think she was a cry-baby, lovey. She'd have gone straight back on the set and said...

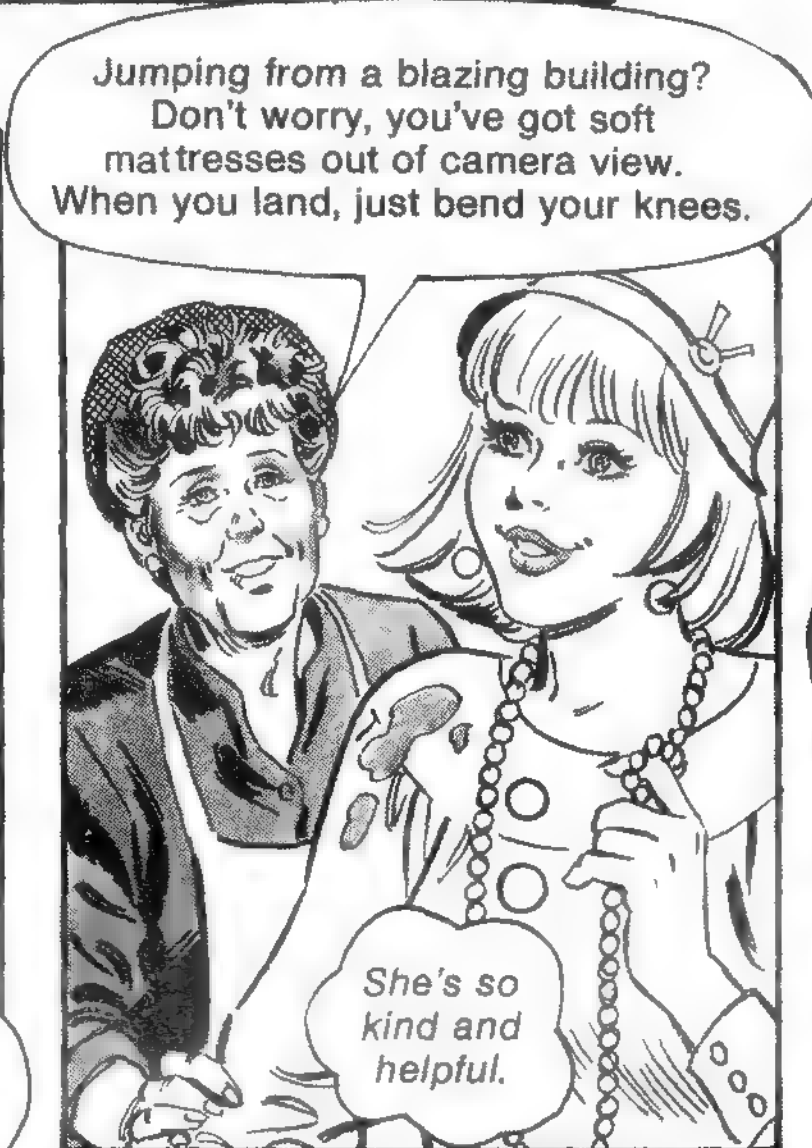

Do you want any more, Mister Director — or can we now move on to the next scene?

Guess... guess I've lost the taste for custard-pie comedy, so okay, let's do the burning building bit!

Well done, dearie. Mitzi couldn't have done better herself!

Thanks, Ma. Only hope I can get up as much nerve to do this next stunt.

Jumping from a blazing building? Don't worry, you've got soft mattresses out of camera view. When you land, just bend your knees.

She's so kind and helpful.

But it's funny. The dear old thing always seems to know what's going to happen. I suppose she's sneaked a look at the script.

Barbie quickly changed, and with a deep breath...

Action!

This is it!

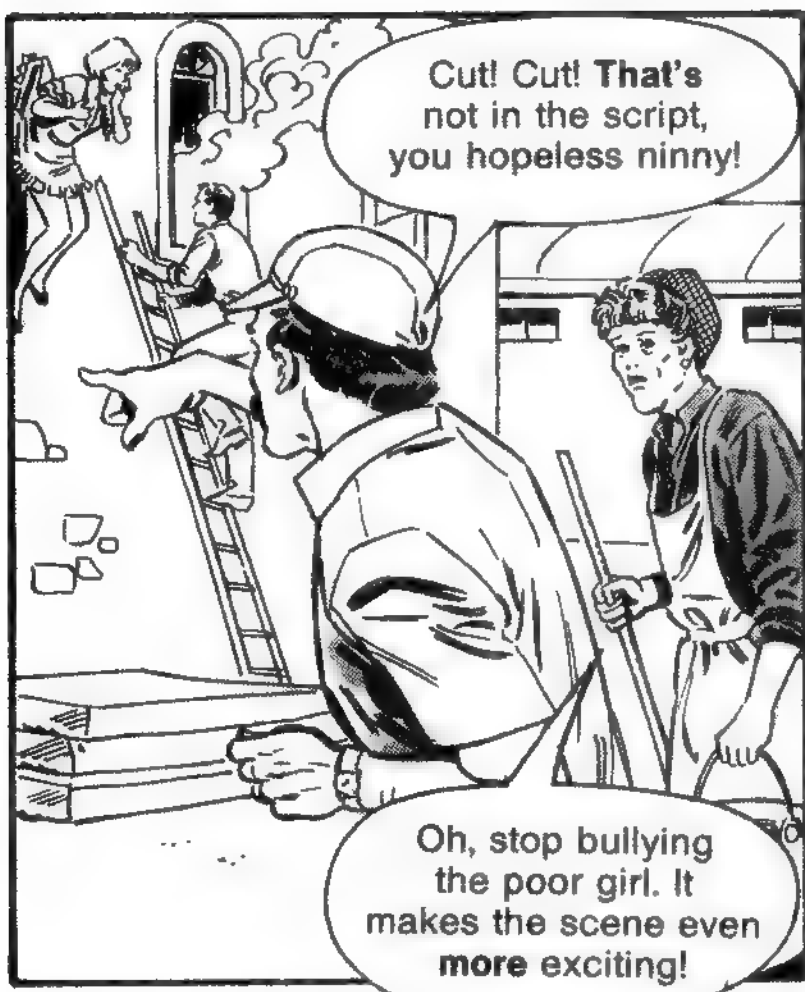

Mattresses, here I come!

But...

Oooh — my dress has caught up on this hook!

Cut! Cut! That's not in the script, you hopeless ninny!

Oh, stop bullying the poor girl. It makes the scene even more exciting!

Look, you stick to sweeping up the studio, Ma, and leave me to direct this epic — okay?

Why are you taking her side anyway?

Because she reminds me of... of Mitzi.

After that the two became almost inseparable...

Drive this truck as close as you can...

...somebody's got to stop the leader!

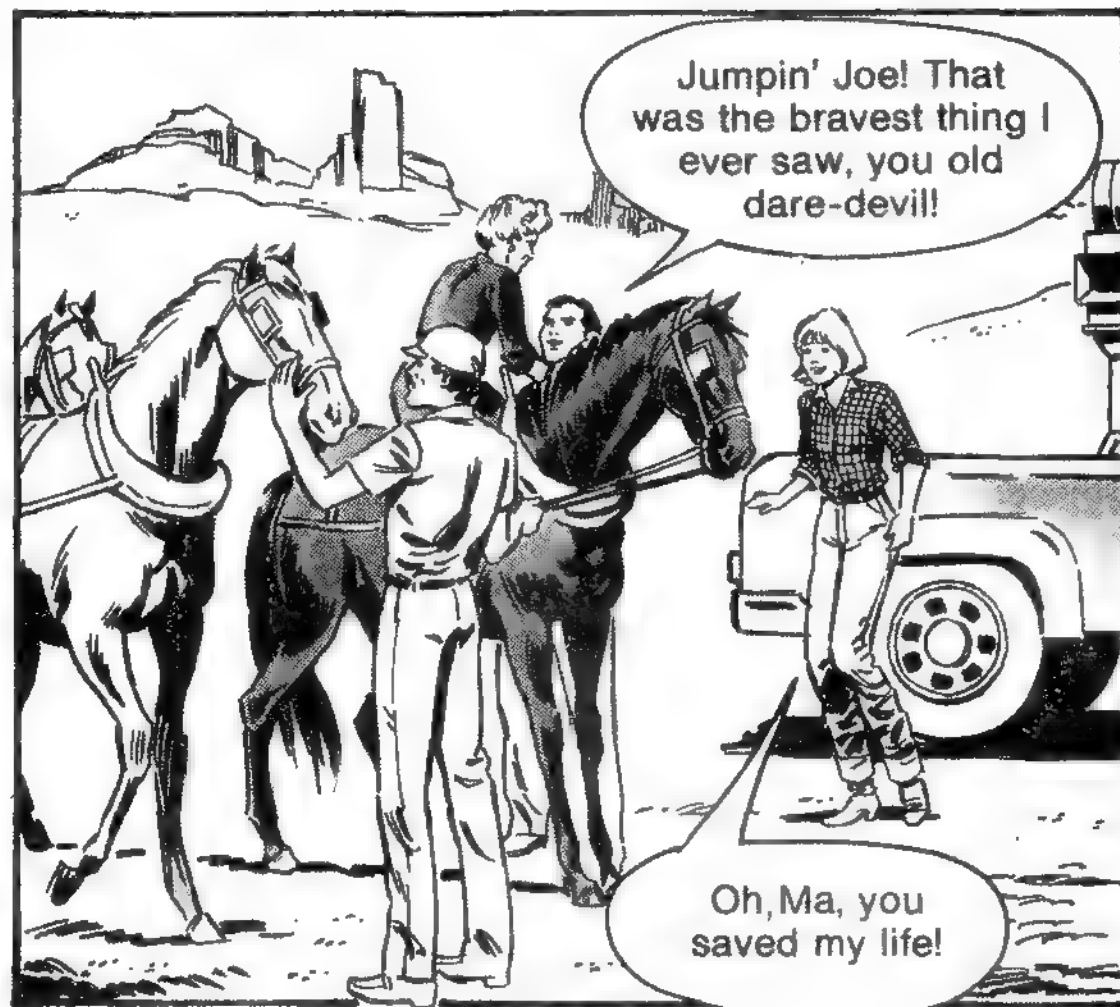

H-has that old girl gone crazy...?!

continued overleaf

But the rescue bid succeeded. . .

That's it. . .whoa there, you runaway beauties!

Jumpin' Joe! That was the bravest thing I ever saw, you old dare-devil!

Oh, Ma, you saved my life!

Are you all right?

I'm. . .I'm fine. It's nice to know these creaky old bones of mine can still pull off a stunt!

Barbie gave a start, suddenly realising. . .

You're. . .you're her, aren't you? Mitzi Lang?

Yes. You see, I just couldn't bear not to be part of the studio 'family' any more. I've been happy just to sweep the studio floor!

But it must be our little secret — promise?

If that's what you want, wild horses won't drag it out of me!

And on the night of the film's premier. . .

Who's the empty seat beside you for, Barbie?

My very special guest. Someone who was kind and helpful to me during the making of the picture!

Oh, you mean the Producer or the studio director?

No, Ken. . .

. . .the studio cleaning lady!

the end

Coming next, Barbie goes on an African safari — and meets an unfriendly native tribe!

The Birds

Skipper and her best friend, Jenny Bird, were in the school play. As they changed for a dress-rehearsal...

Next morning at school, things looked bleak...

First album: Hunting High And Low
First hit single: Take On Me
A-ha was formed in 1981 and the boys decided

As the bell rang. . .

A disaster, more like!
I'm a bundle of nerves!

After school, that evening. . .

Do be careful, Linda. You can't go dropping that on stage.

Yes. . .er. . .
I mean no, Miss Anson.

Poor Linda's in such a state. Skipper, we've got to do something!

The question is what?

Come up with Mopsy, of course! I think I know how to do it — but we'll have to be quick!

Shortly. . .

Five minutes before 'curtain up'. You open act one, Linda. On to the stage, please.

I know I'll be a flop. Where's Skipper, Jenny?

She. . .er. . . had an idea about Mopsy.

You mean she's found her? Fantastic!

Suddenly. . .

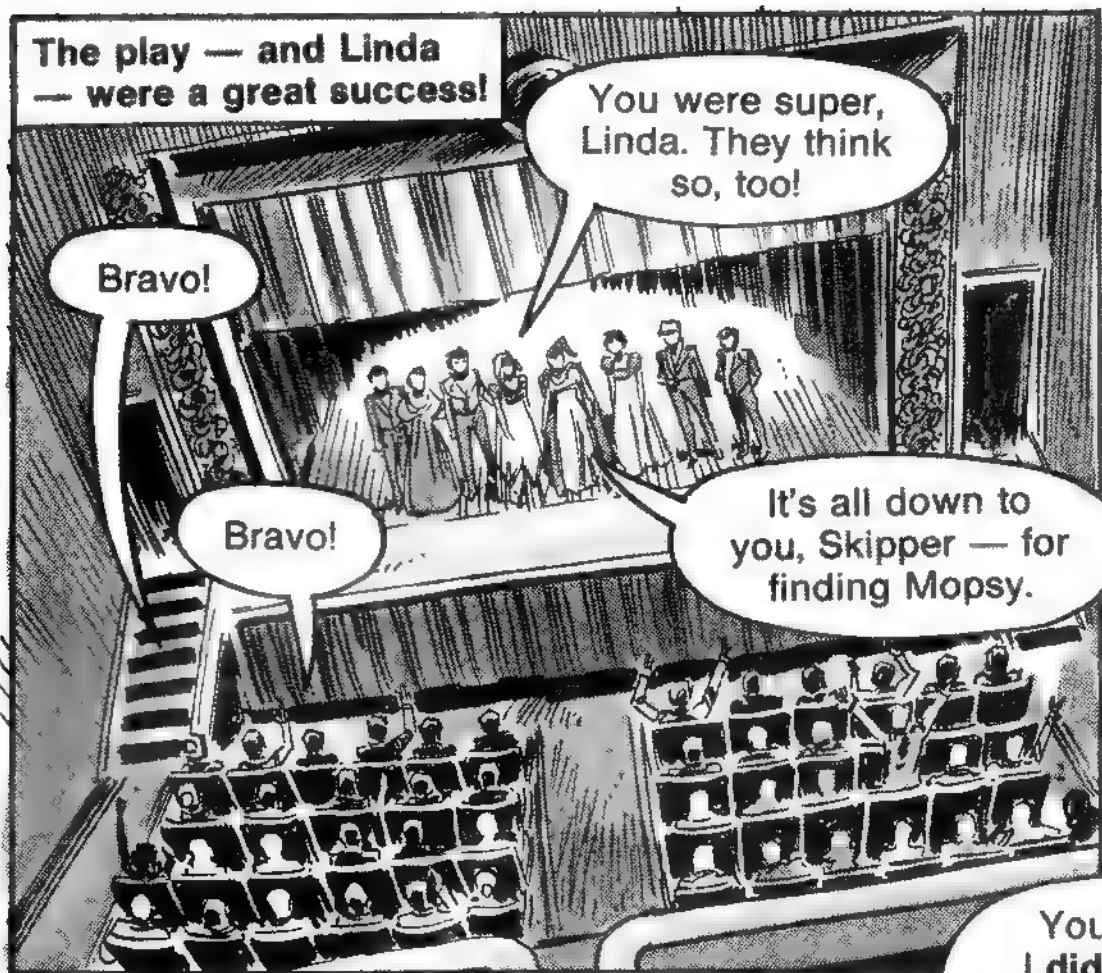

Over here, Linda. Quickly, you're on stage any moment.

Skipper? Who put the light out?

Perhaps the bulb blew. Here. . . just time for your usual 'good luck' pat.

Mopsy! Thank goodness. Everything will be fine now!

Someone find a light-bulb!

The play — and Linda — were a great success!

Bravo!

Bravo!

You were super, Linda. They think so, too!

It's all down to you, Skipper — for finding Mopsy.

Afterwards. . .

Er. . . I didn't actually say I'd found her, Linda.

Wha-at? A mop — with a scarf wrapped round it! You tricked me!

You're right! I mean, I did do it on my own, didn't I? Skipper, Jenny, I don't know how to thank you.

Thank the caretaker. It's his mop!

I'll bet one of you turned the light out, too!

What does it matter? At least we proved you don't need your mascot.

When the girls had changed. . .

Linda — wait! Someone said this is yours!

Mopsy! Where was she?

Assigned to help back-stage, the fifth-former explained. . .

. . . locked in the stock-room with a box of spare costumes. We moved some boxes about last night. I guess she fell in.

So she is yours, then?

Was! Now she's yours! I've grown out of her. Right, Skipper?

Right!

the end

Averting a nasty accident brings Mr. Bird some unexpected luck. Find out how in Barbie 15!

Barbie and Ken know that local thieves are stealing motorbikes. Then Skipper showed Barbie a spooky old mill — where they made a startling discovery...

The Snatchers

part three

Wow!
Motorbikes!

So this is where the thieves have been hiding them!

A
Barbie
serial

That's Sally Barnes' bike — it was stolen
this morning. I'll bet they're stripping the bikes down and selling
the parts.

Clever! Too clever for your own good...

Suddenly...

What...?

Barbie — he's the one who chased me!

Grrrrr!

Prince...!

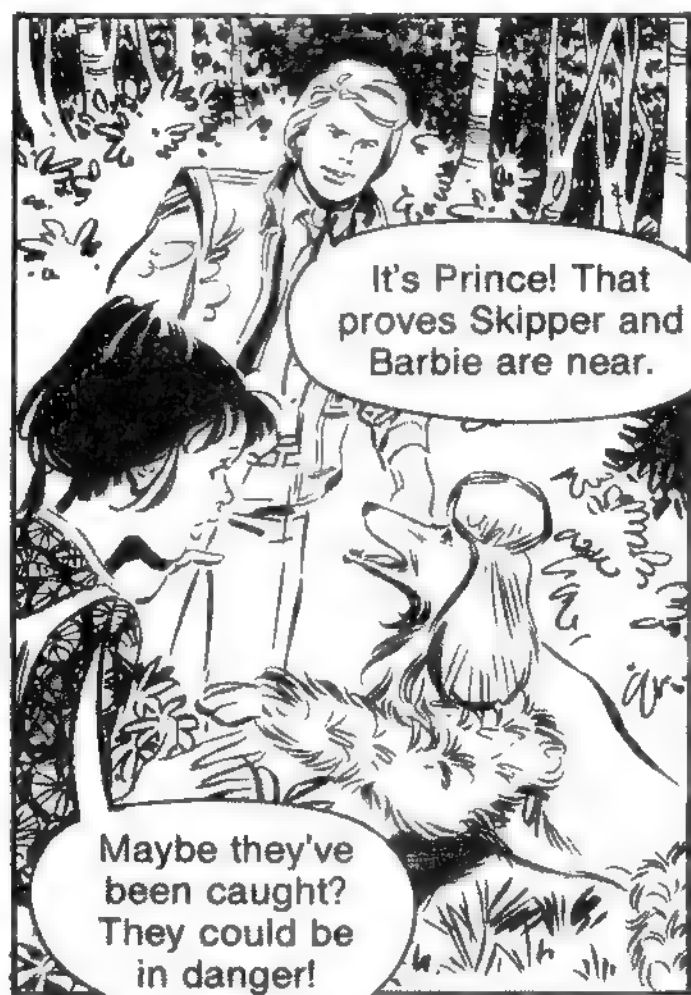

Uhhhh!

Then, from another room...

Now call your dog off my mate — or else!

Ohhhh!

Skipper!
Don't hurt her!
...Prince —
stop!

continued overleaf

I'll think of something. I have to... Skipper and Barbie's safety may depend on it.

Barbie had plans of her own...

I've nearly cut through my ropes. Just a few minutes more.

But we're still stuck in here, Barbie. Oh, I'm scared! What will they do with us?

The ringleader, Eddie, was deciding...

We'll have to move out — find a new base.

It'll take time to shift this lot. What about those girls?

Leave them here — we've got to get well clear.

Serves 'em right for comin' snooping!

Suddenly, a voice shouted...

This is the police! Come on out! You're surrounded!

This might buy some time till Sally gets back.

And...

It's the girls' dog — and a bloke! He was bluffing!

Get him!

I saw this done in an old film. I hope it works!

Look out...!

Then...

Nice work, Prince. Two down... one to go!

Nnngh! My ankle...!

Grrrr!

Why is a top pop-group trying to track down Barbie? Don't miss this great new serial!

Fox tales

"Heard the saying, 'crafty as a fox'? Well that's me — Foxy. I'm crafty enough to get into that chicken-coop.

Suzy won't notice if I take just a few of her chickens' eggs. Mustn't let any of those chickens see me, though!

These will do nicely, thank you! Four eggs should last me until teatime — then I'll nip back for more!

YIKES! Eggs can't bite, can they? Let go! Let go of my paw, I say! Leave me alone, you horrid chicken.

I want my mummy! Ooh, just look at my poor throbbing paw. I'm getting out of this place — fast!

Hm, this barn looks like a safe place to hide from those chickens. I think I'll have a little nap in here until I feel better.

Oof! Who kicked me? Come on, I want to know! Foxes aren't afraid of silly little farm creatures. Foxy's not afraid of anyone!

Er, except goats! Stop butting me. I said I was leaving, didn't I! Don't think I'm going 'cos of you, either! It's just that I've decided I don't really like eggs, or chickens — or goats!"

Otter girl

Jackie Williams was very shy, but all that was to change. . .

I used to walk by the river to be alone, but that was before he turned up. . .

Bobbing, an Otter! He's even shyer than I am, so I've been watching him in secret since he came here!

However, upriver, plans were underway to make that impossible. . .

Right, Slater. I've persuaded my colleagues on the council to support me in this. We start production tomorrow!

Everything's ready to convert the old leather factory into a chemical plant, Mr. Mullins! The river's handy to take the discharge!

Bobbing looks so lovely, bobbing about in the water. I hope he stays here forever!

Ylinnliyk!

Within a few days. . .

Dead fish. . . and Bobbing doesn't look well. That chemical factory waste going into the river wasn't harmless!

Two days before, Jackie had conquered her shyness to face Sid Mullins. . .

Clear off, kid — and if you know what's good for you, keep your mouth shut!

Since those pipes started the discharge, the river's turned a horrible colour. You're poisoning it! You must stop!

continued overleaf

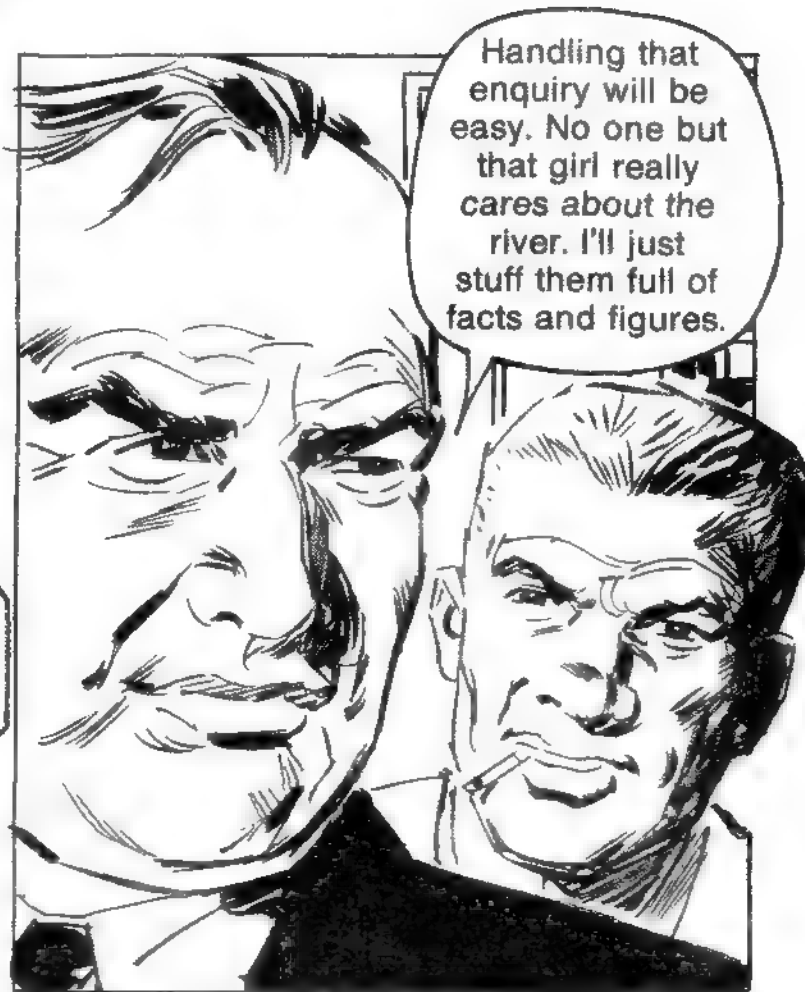

I won't. Sid Mullins wouldn't listen to me, but perhaps the local press will!

Sure enough, that week. . .

More dead fish! At least the paper ran a front-page story. It's called for a public enquiry!

Handling that enquiry will be easy. No one but that girl really cares about the river. I'll just stuff them full of facts and figures.

Jackie's dad shared Mullins' opinion. . .

Mullins is a respected councillor and it's his word against yours. Besides, a factory means jobs. That means a lot locally.

On the day of the enquiry, Jackie had a plan. . .

So should the river. . . and a rare animal like Bobbing!

I'll take a jugful of river water to the enquiry and persuade them to have it analysed. I bet it's full of poisonous chemicals!

I saw her take some river water. Whatever she's planning, I'll phone ahead to the centre to stop her.

At Millchester community hall. . .

Sorry, love. Only adults are allowed to attend the meeting!

Chemical factory enquiry today.

What? Just because I'm young I don't have the right to speak!

I'll still have my say. The rear kitchen door's open for deliveries.

The meeting's about to start. When it's in full swing, I'll make my entrance. Mullins won't be able to stop me!

Someone's coming.
Better hide in one of the cupboards!

Aha. Small, muddy footprints. I suspected she might have sneaked
in this way!

Just as well I'm observant. She won't cause any problems
while I'm around!

Oh, it's you,
Mr. Slater. Everything's
ready in the main hall.
Just one more thing
to bring through!
Thirsty work, public speaking!

Very thoughtful of you,
Mr. Slater. Saved me a bit of time...and the meeting's been held up long enough!

All quiet, now to get the jug
and...huh?
Where's it gone?

What on earth?
What are you doing in here?

Never mind that.
What's happened to the jug of water I left here?

The only jug I saw contained drinking water for Mr. Mullins and his fellow directors.
I took it to them!

Then right now they may be drinking my river sample!
Let me past!

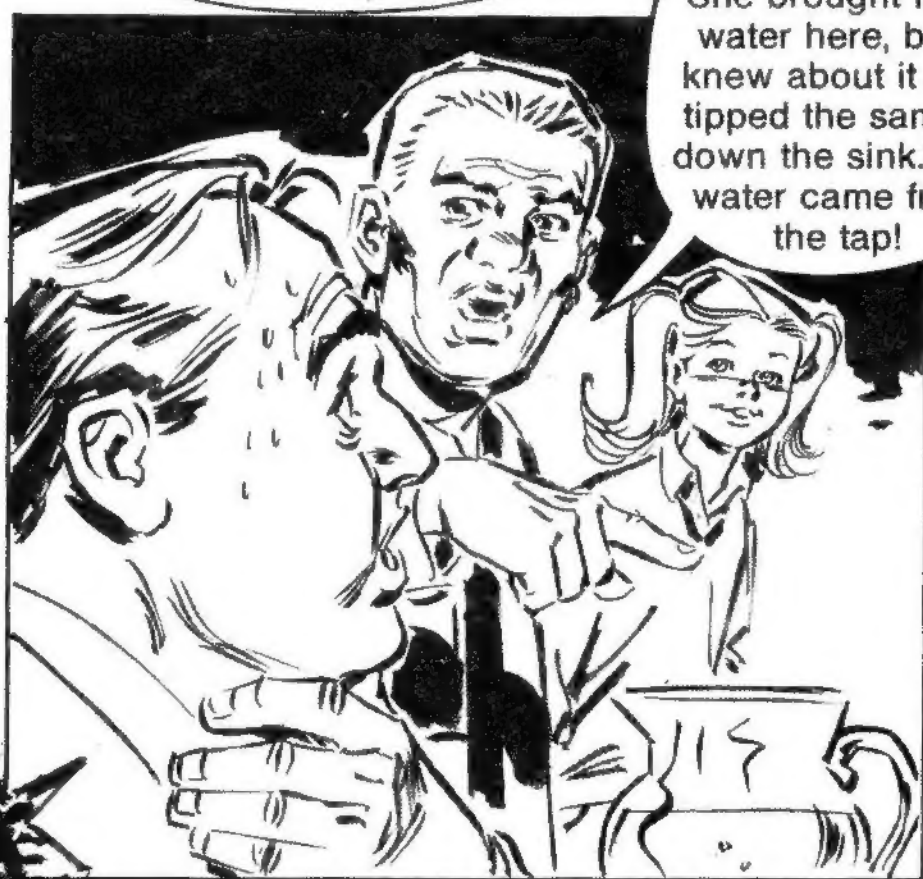

As I was saying, anything entering the river from my factory is completely harmless to...

Stop... all of you... don't drink the water from the jug. It's a sample I took, downstream from the chemical plant!

Glugh! But I've already drunk a glassful! I know what's in that river! Get me a doctor, call an ambulance, I've been poisoned!

Mr. Mullins...

It's all right! She brought river water here, but I knew about it and tipped the sample down the sink. That water came from the tap!

It was too late.

Question, Mr. Mullins. If the factory discharge was harmless, why did you call for a doctor?

And an ambulance! Thought you'd drunk your own poison, didn't you! We've got our story, and you've lost your case!

A few weeks later...

No more pollution, so Bobbing's safe and the new factory site owner has guaranteed nothing will be discharged into the river!

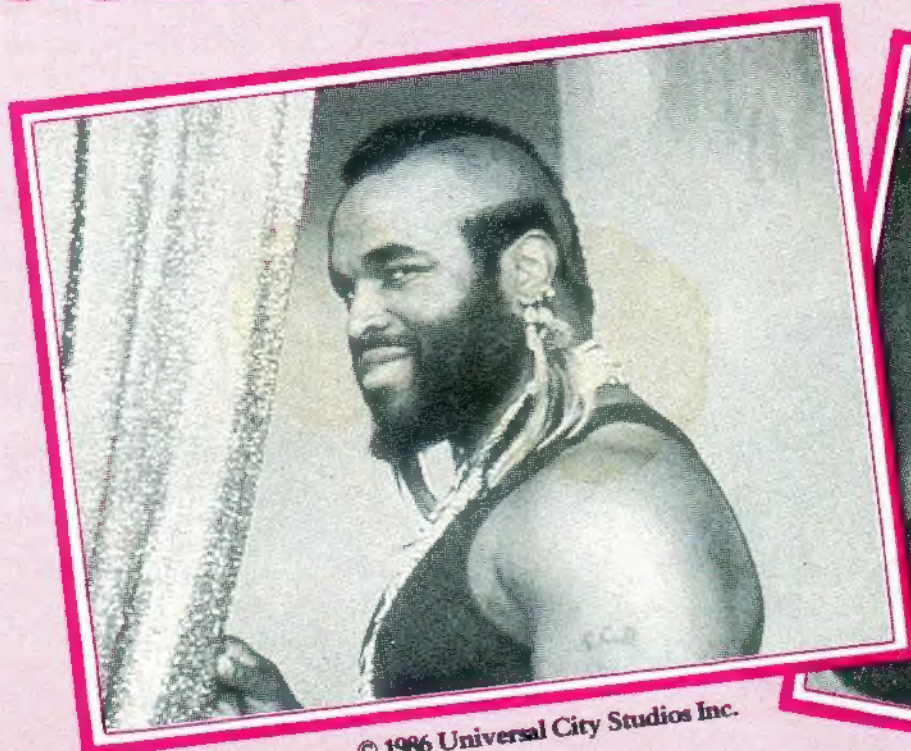

Like me, his daughter, Joanne, loves animals. Caring about Bobbing meant losing my shyness - and gaining a friend!
